The cause for such a sudden rise in Notre Dame's hopes was the return of Left Tackle Farragher to the university and his appearance in front of the gymnasium in moleskins this afternoon. Farragher was called to his home three weeks ago by the Results at Aqueduct, Louisville, Laserious illness of his mother, and he was not expected to return to college before Christmas. rines, Who Were Landed by Admiral Caillard.

REPORT FROM THE ADMIRAL

ANNOUNCING THE ARRIVAL OF HIS WARSHIPS AT MITTLENE.

Statement Giving Reasons of the French Government for Not Occupying the Port of Smyrna.

PARIS, Nov. 5.-Admiral Caillard has occupied the three principal ports of the Island of Mitylene. The following dispatch was received from the admiral, dated Mitylene, Nov. 5, 11:40 a. m.: "Armored division has arrived at Mitylene." The dispatch does not mention any incident attending the landing, but it seems certain that the French commander carried out his instructions, which were to occupy three ports of the island and to seize the customs. One cruiser and three torpedo catchers got separated from the squadron owing to the speed of the latter. The dispatch boat Mouette, which had joined the squadron, was sent to meet them and to accompany them to Mitylene.

Activity at Toulon.

PARIS, Nov. 6.-Telegrams from Toulon report the utmost activity in the preparations to place a squadron in readiness for any eventuality. The ships are taking ammunition and supplies, including live stock and everything necessary to revictual Admiral Caillard's squadron. The battleship Charles Martel, the third-class cruiser Galileo and three large transports are ready to sail. It is asserted that one of Admiral Caillard's ships has a submarine torpedo on board.

The Echo de Paris asserts that M. Delcasse has received a dispatch from M. Eapst, councilor of the French embassy in Constantinople, saying that Admiral Caillard informs him that he has seized the customs of the island of Mitylene.

So should the government's impression that the Sultan will satisfactorily settle the monetary question without delay prove unjustified and the customs receipts at Mytelene not be sufficient to meet the French claims Smyrna can yet be occupied. In the meanwhile the occupation of the ports on the Island of Mytelene is more convenient from a military point of view, as the French cannot easily be disturbed on that island, whereas Smyrna being on the mainland its occupation might have more serious developments than desired. The French government, however, trusts that the whole difficulty will very shortly be arranged to its satisfaction, and hopes that the treaty stlpulations will be carried out by the issue of irades, such as giving certain French schools permission to open, which thus far has been withheld, and also by giving official recognition throughout the Turkish empire to diplomas issued by the French

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 5 .- The project for a treaty of arbitration and court of arbitration, which will be submitted to the Pan-American conference to-morrow by the delegation, is largely framed on lines raised by The Hague peace conference. However, it proposes an increased number of obligatory subjects for arbitration and creates various sanctions with a view to coercion or punishment of nations which, after signing a treaty, fall to live up to it. Among the sanctions proposed are the following: The aggrieved nation and any other nation sympathizing with it may terminate their treaties with the offending power before the proper date for their expiration. Members of the offending power on the court of arbitration may be erased therefrom, and if the majority of the nations signing the treaty approve, a note of censure may be addressed to the said power In extreme cases the disapproving powers may suspend diplomatic relations with the recalcitrants.

AN HEIR-APPARENT'S TOUR.

Results of Duke of York's Visit to

The Duke of York is now on his way

Britain's dominions outside the British isles which should prove instructive to him. He was sent on this tour for two reasons: First, that he might see the British possessions over which he may be called upon to rule; and, secondly, that their people might to loan Dold money after the latter had see him. Many of the places the duke has visited on this tour he had seen before in his capacity as an officer of the navy. Canada and the West Indies he saw as a midshipman, and again when he for a short time commanded a cruiser on the North American station.

The duke's tour has an imperial political bearing at the present time, when the British government wishes to draw the colonies closer to the home government without interfering with constitutional relations. The presence of their future king would, it was thought, still further intensify the loyalty of the Australians, who have furnished so many men to the British army in South Africa. The duke was indeed most cordially received in Australia, but all the effusiveness of his reception did not prevent the Australians from enacting a new goods as those of other nations. Yet we must not consider this tariff incident as indicating that the Australians have lost any of their allegiance of the heart to Great Britain. British colonies, by the wise system of modern Great Britain, are allowed to make such tariffs as seem best in their eyes, a privilege which does not weaken the imperial connection in the least. George III would not have tolerated such conduct by a colony, but George V, as the Duke of York will be if he lives to ascend the throne, has been brought up in different times. George III's mistakes taught Great Britain a lesson which she has remembered and has incorporated in her colonial policy.

The duke's visit to Canada may have proved very instructive to him in revealing how distinct the line of racial cleavage remains. Because the duke at Quebec, in responding to the welcome of the local authorities, spoke in English, the French were deeply offended, and their demonstration of resentment might have gone to great lengths but for the cooler-headed of the French leaders. These persuaded the more flery of the French politicians that if the duke had made a mistake in speaking in English, they would make a greater mistake if they gave to a French cruiser that happened to be at Quebec a cordial reception and left the British vessels out in the cold. British susceptibilities have been hurt by the fact that comparatively few "honors" on decorations have been conferred on Canadians in commemoration of the duke's tour, and Lord Minto is said to be unpopu-
